

Participation of Interact Club members in a service project by Samuel Brown

The project begins by American Automobile (AAA) offices sending Samuel Brown outdated roadmaps.

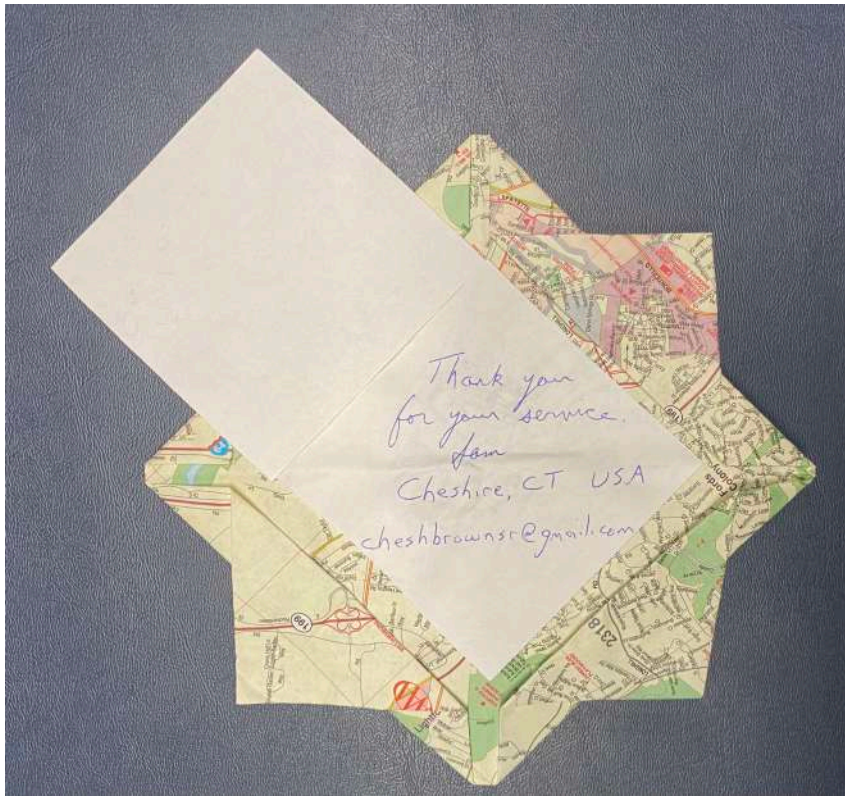

He folds the roadmaps into origami frames and puts messages on each side.

The Interact Club advisor cuts out 3 inch squares of blank paper to be given to students. They would draw artwork and/or words of encouragement onto the blank squares. At the bottom of the square a student should write his or her first name and the city and state.

Samuel Brown would tape the student contribution (like a booklet) to a paper square.

Samuel Brown would pack the frames into a box for shipment to one of these organizations for distribution with care packages to service men and women stationed around the world:
