

The Caretaker's Journey

Copyright © 2011
by Samuel R. Brown, Ph.D.

A woman who was the caretaker of a house was very sick and her doctors did not hold out much hope for her. Once she was gone, her husband and daughter would have to leave the house since they were only permitted to live there while the woman was the caretaker.

A Dream of Camelot

Copyright © 2011
by Samuel R. Brown, Ph.D.

"What a dream I had," thought a young girl as she sat up in bed. "It was so exciting." She tried to recall all the adventures she dreamed before she forgot the details, as she often did after waking up.

A Special Fiddle

Copyright © 2011
by Samuel R. Brown, Ph.D.

Once there was a man who was an excellent fiddle player. He would merrily play his fiddle at weddings, parties, and other celebrations. Everyone always wondered how he became such a good player when he had no musical training. His secret, unknown to people in the town, was his magic fiddle – anyone who touched it was transformed into a great player.

The Magic Flower

Copyright © 2011
by Samuel R. Brown, Ph.D.

Four fairies lived in a tall, green house. Their magical powers came from the enchanted flowers that they grew.

One day a prince rode by and saw the four fairies peering down at him. They seemed to be friendly, so he decided to ask them for

Fox the Prankster

Copyright © 2011
by Samuel R. Brown, Ph.D.

Fox was a sly prankster who was always playing tricks on the other animals that lived on the farm. His first victim this day was Dog, who he found wandering in the forest on the outskirts of the farm. "Hey, Dog," whispered Fox, "the farmer dropped a big, juicy bone in the haystack in the barn as he was unloading the wagon. I just thought yo

Ocean Genie

Copyright © 2011
by Samuel R. Brown, Ph.D.

An old man found an ancient box washed up on the seashore. He brought it home to add to the other little objects that he had found on the beach over the years. This one seemed different from the rest, though, and he decided to open it to take a look inside. As soon as he lifted the cover, a

Lion the Bully

Copyright © 2011
by Samuel R. Brown, Ph.D.

Once there was a lion who was a bully. He would go tramping around the forest bothering

One day he cornered a mouse. He laid his paw heavily on the back of the mouse and would not let it run away.

The Big Pie

Copyright © 2011
by Samuel R. Brown, Ph.D.

Once there was a young woman who loved to bake pies. Early one morning she decided to bake a big pie. This was not just an ordinary big pie. It was a super big pie. When she finished baking the pie, she put it on a wooden table to cool. "There," she said, "that is probably the biggest pie

Our Brother the Pirate

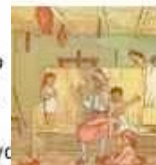

Copyright © 2011
by Samuel R. Brown, Ph.D.

Once there were two sisters and a brother. When they were young, they all liked to go on adventures in their little boats. The sisters always wanted to pretend that they were famous explorers, searching for ancient and forgotten cities or rescuing people who needed their help. The brother always pretended he was a pirate

One Question

Copyright © 2011
by Samuel R. Brown, Ph.D.

A girl and boy lived near each other and were raised in the same nursery. The girl was very bright, but her strong will sometimes caused her to get into trouble. Over the years the boy and girl became the best of friends.