

Literacy Project of the Rotary E-Club of the Southwest USA, District 5510

Funda, Hamtic, Antique, Philippines.

Antiquenos Active Reader's Club

Club advisor: Evan Watson. U.S. Peace Corps
Volunteer

Club motto: Antique - Active, Nice, Thoughtful, Inspiring,
Qualified, Unique and Eager Readers

Gov. Julian Fullon Pacificador National School

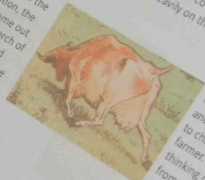

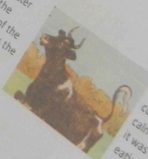

At that moment the cow spotted the flower on the ground that had fallen out of the prince's pocket. The cow decided to eat the delicious looking petals of the flower. All of a sudden, the cow became enraged and went wild. The prince tried to calm the animal but it was no use—the cow threw him off its back and he landed heavily on the ground.

Hearing all of the commotion, the farmer came out onto the porch of the house and stormed into the pasture. "What is going on here?" he demanded.

The cow was still angry and was getting ready to charge at the farmer. But the quick-thinking prince got up from the ground and threw himself in front of the farmer to protect him from the oncoming horns of the cow.

All of a sudden a rooster crowed, signaling the sunrise. As the rays of the sun slowly crept across the pasture, it was clear that the flower's charm was broken.

Immediately, the cow became as calm and happy as it was before eating the flower. Everyone breathed a sigh of relief at the fortunate turn of events.

The farmer was so impressed with the prince's bravery at trying to defend him from the charging cow that he agreed to the prince's request to marry his daughter and they were married the next day.